The twenty-first century has already brought great changes to the world.
What other developments do you expect to happen over this century?

Provide examples and supporting evidence to back up your opinion on this subject.

It is undoubtedly true that enormous changes have happened in this tumultuous century as a result of technological and medical advances. As such, it is predicted in the foreseeable future more changes in such fields will have ever-increasing impacts on the way we live. In this essay, I will discuss the potential changes with respect to technological and medical improvements in the future.

In my opinion, one of the probable developments in the sphere of technology will apply to the regulations of the internet. The Internet has by and large benefited ~~the~~ human beings; however, the integrity of certain content on the web pages has been doubted, and it has significantly affected the growth of entertainment businesses. It is predicted that tough and comprehensive legislation in regard to copyright infringements will be brought forward by government authorities, and the free and fast transmission of information on the net will be regulated accordingly. As such, if a pirated website does not take its illegal materials down, it will be shut down permanently and be liable for a hefty fine.

Comment [m1]: Its better to repeat the auxiliary verb "be" after the conjunction (and)

Another development, in my view, will possibly be medical breakthroughs. With the rapid advancements in technologies, medical institutions will be facilitated with state-of-the-art equipments that would provide them with a more accurate and timely diagnosis and treatment plans for patients, which will alleviate medical staff's unduly burdens. For example, modern computers will help analyse the data of patients' symptoms and make predictions of their recovery prospects. In this way, doctors and nurses will have more time for breaks and therefore more focus on the individual patient. On top of that, chronic diseases such as cancer will more likely be cured with the probable invention of miracle drugs.

Comment [m2]: Equipment is uncountable

In conclusion, humans have been enjoying the benefits that technological and medical developments bring in this century, and will so in the future.

| Grade Criteria | Estimated Grade | Comments |
|------------------------|-----------------|---|
| Task response | 8+ | This doesn't look like it is a past IELTS question. However, you respond to it fully and develop your main points well. |
| Cohesion and coherence | 8-9 | You structure your essay well. A minor suggestion: |

| | | |
|------------|-----|---|
| | | The last paragraph would be better if you wrote one more sentence. Ideally one sentence to summarise the essay and then one sentence to give your final opinion. You seem to have both in this sentence. Perhaps the part after the comma could be developed into its own sentence. |
| Vocabulary | 8+ | You may have a small issue with "s" endings: human beings plural equipment (uncountable) |
| Grammar | 8+ | A couple of minor errors only "be" "the" |
| overall | 8.5 | You are writing really well. I made some suggestions, but really you don't need to do anything to get an 8 or more! |
